VOL. XXX. UKIAH, MENDOCINO CO., CAL.: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1905. NO. 14

BAPTISTS MEET IN CONVENTION

The meetings of the Baptist association last week were largely attended and highly profitable to all. Nearly fifty delegates and visitors were in attendance, besides a large number of our own town's people and country folk. Eight churches compose the association and each was well represented. Rev. A. J. Sturtevant was re-elected moderator and Rev. F. A. Houston, clerk. The moderator's address on Thursday morning gave a clear view of the field. This was followed by the appointment of committees preparatory to the real work of the association. Thursday afternoon was devoted to womans work and all present enjoyed an excellent address by Mrs. J. Sunderland of Oakland. Thursday night the annual sermon was preached by Rev. M. L. Goff of Mendocino. This was far above the average and very helpful to all. Friday was a day of good things. A masterly address on state missions was delivered by Rev. E. R. Bennett of Oakland, who is general missionary for the state.

Letters from the different churches were read and a kindly, brotherly interest manifested in each. Uncle Todd and Uncle Hughes were both kindly spoken of by many. Rev. J. Sunderland of Oakland pictured vividly before the association the needs of foreign mission work and called attention to the "great commission" of the savior to "go preach to all nations." Rev. J. W. Davis of Lakeport preached at night a sermon all too short as many said, for the general expression was fine. Saturday Rev. T. G. Brownson, D. D., president of California college, gave an excellent address on Education, and at night W. A. Chapman of Westport preached an exceedingly helpful and inspiring sermon. On Sunday morning Rev. C. M. Hill, D. D., of Berkeley, president of the Baptist Theological Semenary, preached a sermon that will long be remembered as one of great practical value and power. D. P. Ward, who is always so welcome to Ukiah small folks, conducted a special interesting service for the boys and girls on Sunday afternoon. At night the moderator, Rev. Sturtevant, preached a strong sermon from the text "Whom say men that I am." After which the association closed with a prayer of consecration and singing "Blest be the tie that binds." Thus closed one of the best sessions ever held by this association.

A New Grocery Firm.

Henry Beattie, the grocer, disposed of his business this week to W. H. Duffield and J. E. Tibbits who have taken possession and are already getting in new stock. Both of these gentlemen are enterprising business men, Mr. Tibbits coming from Fresno and Mr. Duffield from Willits. They intend handling the best of staple and fancy groceries and ask a share of the public patronage.

Sent Up For Assault.

James Cooper of Sherwood was arrested last week for making an assault with a deadly weapon upon the person of Mrs. Joseph Willits. The complaint was sworn to before Judge Kenworthy of Willits and the case came up before that gentleman. Cooper was fined $20 and being unable to produce that amount was sent to the local bastile.

Carnival for Healdsburg.

Healdsburg is to have a water carnival, the fact being decided on at a mass meeting of the citizens this week. The date has been set for October 14. Excursions will be run from this city and other points along the line.

Wendling Telephone Completed.

Wendling now has telephone connection with the outside world. The line from Boonville to that city was completed Monday. The line is a part of the Sunset Telephone company's system.

THE RACES A SUCCESS

The races have been a decided success and every day the crowds that visit the track are bigger. The class of horses at the track has a great deal to do with this and the public appreciates the effort of the managers to give them good sport. Wednesday was ladys day as was easily guessed from the number of ladies in evidence at the track.

The half mile trotting and pacing race Wednesday attracted much notice especially as it was won by a local horse. Rose Thorn belonging to Lewis Charlton was the winner all five of the heats being trotted. She took the first two and Charley Beldon then showed up in the lead for two Rose Thorns hobbles breaking in the fourth heat. In the last heat Rose Thorn was again successful.

Badly Used, a ten to one shot, was the feature of yesterdays racing winning easily in the seven-eights mile dash. Her showing was entirely unlooked for and she had not been played. The following is the result of the racing to date:

Tuesday: ⅜ dash—Stanza, Mrs. D. B. Parks; Alba Cheta, C. W. Barrick; time, 39. 2nd race: ⅜ and repeat—Leah, J. A. Lynch; Coney Island, J. E. King; Potencia, P. E. Smith. Jack Richilieu and Bill Ny, Jr. also ran. Time, 37, 36¾, 37½. 3rd race ⅝ mile dash—Light Braid, Buckman & Hill; Ballest, N. W. Randall; Procrastination, C. F. Tanner; George P. McNear also ran; time 1:03. 4th race ¾ dash—Black Cloud, Mrs. F. B. Jones; Yellowstone, W. P. Fine; The Lieutenant, H. Staver; Cora Goetz and Lone Fisherman also ran; time 1:17.

Wednesday: Trotting heats, 3 in 5—Rose Thorn, Louis Charlton; Charlie Reldel; Gertie H; time 1:08, 1:08, 1:10, 1:12¼, 1:09. 2nd race 1 mile—Black Cloud, J. A. Lynch; Moor, Fleura De Lis stable; Yellowstone; W. P. Fine; Carilee also ran; time 1:44¼. 3rd race 3½ furlongs and repeat—Procrastinate, C. F. Tanner; Edinborough, H. Staver; Blondora, J. E. King; Light Braid, Bill Ny, Jr; Sierra Beau also ran; time, 43½, 43½, 44.

Thursday. ⅞ dash—Light Braid, Hill & Buckman; Blondora, J. E. King; The Lieutenant, H. Stover; Moor and North Pole also ran; time 1:30¼. 2nd race 2½ furlongs and repeat—Cora Goetz, West End Stables; Coney Island; J. E. King; Roadwarmer, Al Want; time 30½, 31. 3rd race ⅞ dash—Badly Used, A. Nathan; Yellowstone, W. P. Fine; Potencia, P. E. Smith; Procrastionate and Lone Fisherman also ran; time 1:30½.

HORSE KILLED AT LOCAL TRACK

Mischievous, a promising colt belonging to H. B. Hayden, ran into the fence during a race at the track Tuesday and was injured so badly that he died. The horse was on the outside coming up the back stretch and was a little in the lead when the accident happened. He struck the fence with such force that three of the posts were broken off. Picket, the jockey who was riding him, was thrown about twenty feet and was badly injured. Picket is a Fort Bragg boy having resided there for the past three years. The horse was a three to one favorite in the race and was regarded as a very likely racer.

Gets a Daring Thief.

Harry McCready, formerly of this place but now of the Oakland police force, shot and killed a bicycle thief by the name of Sargent this week. The thief was running away from the officer and refused to stop. He had recently escaped from another officer and still had the hand cuffs on his wrists, having removed the link with a file.

HUMBOLDT COUPLE MEET THEIR FATE

A. P. Campton and Mrs. Dora Cowan of Rhonerville, Humboldt county were married in this city last Saturday noon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thompson of the M. E. church, south at the parsonage. Both of the contracting parties are well known in Humboldt county where the groom is a prosperous farmer of the Eel river valley. They made the trip overland to this city and will return in private conveyance spending their honeymoon and making the trip by easy stages. There appears to be something in the Ukiah climate, the way the ceremony is performed by the local clergymen or the strength of the knot tied or some other hidden cause that is driving outside couples to this city when young cupid succeeds in striking them with his shaft. Scarcely a week passes that there is not a wedding solemnized for some couple who are not residents. Ukiah welcomes the strangers and the PRESS wishes them a long and happy life. May the influx of strangers seeking Hymen's altar continue.

N. S. G. W. at Work.

The Native Sons are soon to have a monster initiation. At a special meeting last Thursday at which State Organizer Mocker was present the membership was divided into teams to work for new material, Attorney Thatcher being chosen for captain of one team and Ralph Crocket of the of the other. The losing team will treat the successful one to a banquet.

WOMAN SHOOTS DRUNKEN MAN

A shocking tragedy occurred last Sunday evening at about six o'clock when Mrs. Effie Neely shot and instantly killed her husband, Wm. T. Neely at their residence on the Caspar road about one and one half miles north of that town. It appeared at the inquest that Neely was drunk at the time and would, in all probability have murdered his wife had she not secured the gun and put an end to his existence, says the Fort Bragg Mail.

Neely had abused his wife for not calling him to supper and she ran into the kitchen and locked the door. When she looked into the room where Neely was she saw him sitting in a chair in a drunken stupor with a shotgun across his lap. She slipped in and secured the weapon but not before he had discovered her and threatened her with it.

When he awoke again and missed the gun he seized a piece of wood and started towards his wife. She stated at the inquest that she retreated and secured the gun and pointed it at him commanding him to keep away. The gun was discharged and Neely fell dead. The woman stated that her husband must have cocked the weapon and that she pressed the trigger in her excitement not noticing the position of the hammer. The coroner's jury exonerated her from all blame.

An Indian Arrested.

Robert Duncan swore to a complaint before Judge Crockett this week charging Charles Lucas with assault to commit murder. The assault occurred last Sunday while both parties were under the influence of firewater. The Robert Duncan referred to is not the genial district attorney but an Indian bearing the same name. His assailant is also an Indian. The defendant was committed to the county jail pending a preliminary examination.

Masons Celebrate.

A delegation of Willits Masons visited Lakeport last Saturday, according to the News to participate in the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the new Masonic temple.

ENGLISH FOUND A FAT WALLET

C. English made a discovery this week that surprised him. Shortly after the fire that ruined the Gibson hop house he was looking over the ruins and discovered the wallet laying near the burned building. It appeared to be filled with papers and so he took it to his house and laid it away supposing that it would be advertised or that some one would call for it. This week he happened to run across it again and concluded to investigate its contents more throughly. On opening it he nearly had heart failure to see that it contained a roll of greenbacks and some checks. In all it contained $780, about $500 of which was in checks and the remainder in greenbacks. He found some papers in it that indicated that it belonged to L. Boggi and lost no time in bringing it to this city and returning it to its owner. Mr. Boggi was particularly lucky in having his wallet fall into honest hands as it occasionally happens that things are lost in this section and fall into the hands of people who are traveling through the country and forget to look for an owner.

Timber Changes Hands.

Frank J. Kilpatrick, the millionaire lumberman has sold all his timber and interests to H. B. Hickey who recently purchased the Lee timber, also the Kahn and Brush lands in the vicinity of Wendling and Camp creek. Mr. Kilpatrick, we understand, leaves for Oregon to look for sugar pine.

PERCENTAGE GAMES CLOSED

There was trouble in the camps of the operators of per centage games Wednesday morning when they were notified by the sheriff that if any of the games were opened there would be some arrests. As is usually the case it has been the understanding that the town would be wide open during the week and gamblers had flocked in from far and near and all kinds of games were running from klondike to faro. The saloon men had donated various sums to the race meet with the expectation of selling their gambling privileges for enough to make them even. The ministers of the town, however, decided that things should be different and presented a petition to the sheriff requesting him to stop the gambling. The games were in conflict with the state law and were compelled to close to avoid arrest.

It Was a Joke.

L. J. Holzhauser has been worried this week answering questions. He thoughtlessly stated that he had been held up and relieved of his purse. The news spread rapidly and "How much did you lose?" became the regular manner of saluting him. He says that the next time he springs a joke that it will be of a different kind.

Draining the Outlet.

According to the News the work of clearing out the outlet at Willits is progressing rapidly. The subscription is growing and it is probable that the days of duck hunting near that prosperous village have become memories of the past.

Hop Buyer in Town.

C. C. Donnovan was up from Santa Rosa this week looking over the hop market. He was accompanied by his buyer, A. Meyers, who remained in this city while Mr. Donnovan returned home. They made the trip in an automobile.

Wool Sale Set.

Warehouseman Lucas reports that he has set woolsale for Tuesday October 17. Wool is coming in and there are prospects of having a good sale on the date mentioned. No offers have yet been made.

A BUSY WEEK FOR UKIAHITES

Race week and the carnival are here and the sidewalks look like Market street on a busy day. The stores and business houses are full and one wonders where all the people came from. There are a great many strangers in town and the towns people turn out to help the rush. The races in the afternoon have been enjoying a good attendance and in the evening the carnival tents receive the attention.

Money spending seems to be as infectuous as small pox and everyone is loosening up as the saying is. The majority of the money is being spent by local people but it is getting into circulation and that is the main thing in the eyes of the business people. There is no doubt but this is the busiest week ever experienced by Ukiah.

The tents of the Nat Reiss carnival company line the streets from the Palace hotel to school street. The cross streets are also occupied, some to the exclusion of traffic. The merry-go-round and the ferris wheel are occupying the attention of the little ones and they are having the time of their lives. Some prominent citizens have been noticed patronizing these amusements but investigation showed that they were merely doing so that they might keep their children from falling and getting hurt. It is a similar proposition to the father taking the boy to the circus.

Death of Mrs Frasier

Mrs. Pauline Frasier, wife of L. B. Frasier, died in this city on the 2nd inst. after a long and painful illness. The deceased was born in Kentucky September 13, 1839, and moved with her husband to this city on April 30, 1871. Since that time they have lived in almost every portion of California, having moved from place to place with the hopes of benefitting the health of the deceased who was afflicted with pulmonary trouble. The deceased was a good woman and neighbor and was highly esteemed by her friends. Her closing hours were peaceful and she passed away with a smile on her face. Besides the husband nine children and seventeen grandchildren survive her. She is deeply mourned by the family and friends who knew her to be a devoted wife and the best of mothers.

Injured at Mill.

Henry Busch mashed the forefinger of his right hand while working in Al Johnston's mill at Low Gap Saturday. He came to this city for treatment.

WILL LOCATE AT OROVILLE

Andrew A. Ward, who for the past two years has been employed as undertaker and funeral director of the Ukiah Mercantile company, resigned his position with that company the first. He left Thursday with his family for Oroville where he has purchased an undertaking and embalming business, that has been established over forty years, from Chas. S. Topping. Mr. Ward has made many friends here through his courteous business methods and pleasant manner during his two years of business life here and their many friends in this city will be loath to lose him and his family from the community. The new location, however, is a good one and Mr. Ward believes that it is to his business advantage and his many friends here wish him the success he is sure to win.

Shut Down for Repairs.

A. R. Johnson was in town several days this week and reports that he has had the mill shut down several days getting the boiler fixed. The mill is turning out between ten and twelve thousand when running.

PROGRESS AT EEL RIVER

The dam for the Eel river Power & Irrigation company is nearing completion. The main part of the dam is now about fifty feet from bedrock and is in a position to stand the floods of winter. As the structure cannot be completed before the rainy season the company intends suspending work until spring as soon as the water commences to raise. The water will be allowed to run over the top the same as it will over the completed dam.

The dam does not extend straight across the river as is commonly supposed but extends from a large boulder on this side of the stream nearly to the outside where the bed rock appears in a ledge and turns up stream. A wing follows this line of bedrock to the other bank. The main dam will be extended across below this wing and the intervening space packed with earth and rubble. The wing will be several feet higher than the dam and will thus keep the water from running over and carrying out the dirt fill.

Work on the tunnel is progressing satisfactory and from each side and about 3000 feet have been completed. This is a little over half of the distance. The men are still working in solid rock and the prospects are that the whole distance will be in the same material. The contractors are hoping that the rock will continue as it greatly simplifies the proposition, is much less dangerous and does not require timbering.

W. K. Dillingham is in charge of a force of men and is cleaning the drifts and rubbish out of Potter valley creek. Trees and roots are being removed and the channel deepened and widened in places. The work is preparatory to the completion of the tunnel and the turning of the water through the mountain and will prevent any damage to the ranches along Potter valley creek. Besides carrying the water that falls in the valley it will have to carry all the water that runs through the tunnel during rainy season. By giving the water an unimpeded course the channel will adapt itself to the amount of water to be carried.

The brick for the power house is burned and everything in readiness to commence building. Nothing will be done on it, however, until spring as it is now so late that the heavy machinery that is to be installed in it cannot be hauled over the roads before the rainy season commences. In the winter it would be impossible to haul it. About 200 men are now employed in this enterprise and the monthly payroll is enormous.

Three Ten-pound Girls.

It is not strange in this section to have one or two or even three girls born in a week but when three are reported and each weighs ten pounds, and all the reports come from the same doctor it is strange. This is the case this week and Dr. Dickinson vouches for the truth of the statement. On the 28th Mrs. J. E. Mitchel presented her husband with a ten-pound girl; on the 25th Mrs. David Armstrong of Coyote valley made a similar presentation; on the 29th Mrs. G. E. Casey of Redwood valley presented her husband with a ten-pound girl. At last reports all the mothers and all the ten-pound girls are getting along nicely.

The Voting Machine.

Clerk of the Supreme Court Frank C. Jordan was in town this week exhibiting his voting machine. He had one of the machines in front of the court house and kept the crowd busy. It is alleged that several prominent Democrats voted split tickets for the first time in their lives. Some good citizens were noticed voting more than once but of course they had an intention of stuffing the ballot.

over good, deemed it expedient to set the trial at the earliest hour, an' I warrant thee, Matthew, that if the prisoner is found guilty and condemned to die her execution will follow speedily."

"Doth fear a rescue, master?" the jailer asked, alarm written on his countenance.

"'Tis hard telling what intention was in the man's mind when he left," Taunston replied soberly. "An we were careless enough to let the prisoner lie here a month or so mayhap the popinjay, safely surrounded by armed followers, would ride back to break down the door and bear the witch away. But," as he saw the pallor deepen on the old keeper's face, "rest easy, Matthew, an' have faith in the council."

Having finished his discourse, he turned his horse about.

"One moment stay thee," the jailer cried eagerly, laying a detaining hand on the horse's mane. "An' should this knight find means of escape through the forest and ride back to save his lady, this old prison would offer but poor resistance."

"With so much dispatch will the council seal the woman's fate," Josiah answered sternly, "that unless La Fabienne hath eagle's wings wherewith to speed him on his travels he will arrive too late. Fare thee well, Matthew."

He started to ride away, then, pulling rein, suddenly brought his animal to a standstill.

"I a'most forgot to tell thee," he called over his shoulder, "that the council hath under advisement the matter of sending some other to remain with thee until the day that thy prisoner hath been freed or her doom sealed. God be with thee, Matthew."

Putting spurs to his horse, he rode away, and the keeper, calling his dog, turned the great key in the lock and entered the jail.

The next morning, despite the fact that a heavy mist hung over the mountain and a drizzling rain was falling, the quiet village of Cragenstone presented a scene of unusual activity. From the various houses people were issuing on their way to the council hall, and at the Sign of the Red Heart stern faced Puritans from far distances were arriving constantly, for the story of Margaret's arrest had been passed from mouth to mouth over the mountain, and in those credulous, superstitious times such a sensational event as the trial of a witch was the signal for a general holiday. Shepherds left their flocks, housewives their spinning wheels, the husbandman laid down his plow, and, donning their best attire, they walked or rode to the scene of interest. So all the morning along the roadways and before the various shops in the village groups of newcomers advanced or stood listening with mouths agape to the startling and fearful tales told them by the townspeople of "the accurst woman's doings" and the suffering she had caused those that had come under her evil spell.

Precisely at the hour of noon, as the rusty iron bell at the prison clanged out the tidings that the time of Margaret's trial had arrived, the chief councilor and council, accompanied by two judges from Sterndorf renowned on the mountain for their knowledge of the law, made their way through the great concourse of people gathered before the jail. Trembling with excitement, old Matthew threw open the door, and they entered, walking slowly to the council chamber, followed at a respectful distance by the assembled people, who took seats quietly on the rough wooden benches prepared for them.

When all were seated and the clanging of the bell had ceased, the chief councilor rose and called loudly the name of Matthew Allen.

Immediately the jailer appeared at the door.

"Matthew Allen," he said in solemn tones, "I call on thee in the name of the king to produce the woman in thy charge, one Margaret Mayland, before this tribunal. Bring forth the prisoner!"

Amid a breathless silence he resumed his seat.

Presently the grating noise of the opening and shutting of an iron door was heard, then the sounds of footsteps coming along the corridor. All eyes were turned toward the entrance and there was a ripple of excitement and deep interest as the old keeper, leading the prisoner, appeared in the doorway. Eagerly the spectators fixed their curious glances on Margaret, who wore a plain dress of black cloth unrelieved by any color or ornament save the gold cross on her bosom, that shone brightly on its fine gold chain. Her glittering hair, brushed back smoothly, was coiled in a loose knot, and she walked with drooping head, her pale face wearing an expression of suffering and hopeless misery.

They advanced slowly, the jailer finding difficulty in making a way for them through the crowded aisle, until they came to an open space before the council, where Matthew, seating Margaret on a wooden stool placed there for the purpose, left her. So intense was the stillness in the room that the noise of the falling of a pin could have been heard as the assemblage gazed at the prisoner brought face to face with her judges and accusers and who now sat alone apart, her hands clasped together in her lap, her proud head bent and her blue eyes dull and heavy, their glance not lifted from the floor.

The chief councilor sat on a bench surrounded by the council, and back of them, seated on wooden stools, were the witnesses and accusers. Josiah Taunston, summoned to serve in both capacities, sat with his mother in a place of prominence and received a large share of comment and curious attention. Seated just before him in the council was one of the visiting judges from Sterndorf, who, after surveying Margaret's youth and beauty with astonishment, turned to Josiah, saying softly:

"By my faith, good sir, the maid is possessed of wondrous beauty and looks not like one that had sold her soul to the devil."

Josiah's grim face darkened.

"Hist, man! Look not her way, an' put thy thoughts on holy things. To appear winsome is of her evil art; 'tis one of the first tricks she doth use to put folk under her spell. 'Tis well I were here to warn thee, friend."

The man turned about with a frightened expression and, fixing his glance on the audience, kept it there.

Soon the chief councilor, in large curled wig and loose gown of black, rose to his feet.

"Margaret Mayland, rise."

The prisoner, without lifting her eyes, obeyed his command.

"Margaret Mayland," he continued, speaking with stern distinctness, "in the name of the king, thou hath been taken into custody and now brought to trial on the following charges: Connivance with Satan in rebellion against God, possessing a malevolent influence over human beings and supernatural powers to injure them, to read their thoughts, to fascinate and harm by a look, to control the elements and in other ways most wicked to practice the awful crimes of magic, black art and witchcraft. Thine accusers state," he continued, "that already thou hast wrought much suffering to thy neighbors in this village. Woman, hath aught to say in thy defense?"

For the first time Margaret lifted her eyes. "Good sir, of the charges thou dost name I am not guilty," she answered gently.

"Hast thou secured any one to argue in thy defense, to plead for thee?" he demanded.

"Nay, sir."

Her head fell forward, and she clasped her hands together tightly.

"I—I have no friends hereabout, save one old woman, who can do naught but cry for me."

"Thou mayst be seated."

A murmur of deep interest ran through the assemblage as the old councilor said: "Councilmen, we will proceed with the trial. Let the first witness be called."

He resumed his seat with solemn dignity, while the court crier, bristling with importance, rose at once, calling dramatically, "Josiah Taunston to the witness bench!"

CHAPTER XXV.

As his name was spoken thus loudly and suddenly Taunston turned deathly white, and great beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead. He attempted to rise, but, feeling his legs unsteady under him, resumed his seat; then, controlling himself by a strong effort, again rose and walked with his accustomed air of calm seriousness to the bench set apart for the witnesses. The chief councilor addressed him solemnly:

"Josiah Taunston, doth thou promise, knowing that a just and revengeful God heareth all thou wilt say, to speak truth?"

"I do so solemnly promise."

Then a young attorney, who had been appointed by the council to question witnesses, stepped forward, taking a place just before Margaret, who if she heeded what was going on gave no evidence of it, but sat motionless, with lowered head and eyes downcast.

"Josiah Taunston," he commenced rapidly, addressing the witness, "as the accused hath secured no person to defend her or to parley questions with witnesses it will be proper for thee to give thy evidence directly and with as much speed as possible. Witness, what occurrence between thee and the prisoner first caused thee to think she was in connivance with the devil?"

After mopping his brow with his handkerchief and wetting his pale lips with his tongue Josiah spoke:

"'Twas on a day soon after Margaret Mayland's return to her estate that I went one morning to fetch my sister, who had been detained by the storm a few days at the house. As I approached from the roadway mine astonished gaze fell upon my sister, usually a maiden of great decorum, running like a wild thing along the top of the pasture wall, whilst the prisoner, with her hair unbound an' streaming i' the wind, swung from tree to tree, laughing an' chattering gleefully as one bewitched. My sharp cry of rebuke brought them to their senses, and, greatly abashed and crestfallen, they advanced quietly to meet me. Hoping for some good influence with my cousin, I entered the house and stopped a short time to remonstrate with her for her unbecoming behavior.

"I also took occasion, as I felt it my duty, to rebuke her for wearing for ornament a papist cross that always, no matter how frequent the changes in her dress, hung about her neck on a gold chain. I urged upon her the fact that such a decoration was distasteful to all good Puritans and warned her that if she persisted in her headstrong foolishness she would bring upon herself much suspicion an' distrust. Suddenly, as I uttered the words, the chain parted an' fell to the floor, where, in my righteous anger, I grasped it and but for the woman's heartrending shrieks an' shrill screams of agony, that I confess disarmed me, I would have thrown it into the fire!"

Here his narrative was interrupted by loud murmurs of approval from the audience.

"For the nonce, under her spell, I returned the emblem to her with unwillingness, an' thereupon, greatly discouraged and disheartened in mine endeavors to lead the woman into better ways, I left the house."

He paused a moment for greater effect; then, throwing up his head suddenly, said, with slow emphasis, "At noon, councilmen, with the same hand that held that cross, being innocent of harm and having no thought of evil, I fed my sheep, and before sundown many of the animals were lying sick of an unknown disease!"

"Doth make a charge, witness?" asked the attorney.

"I charge that the woman is accurst; that the cross she weareth even now so brazenly on her bosom is a witch mark that containeth magic to wreak harm to living creatures," he answered harshly.

All glances were fixed on Margaret, who neither moved nor spoke.

"Continue, witness, an thou hast more to say," the chief councilor here interposed.

Josiah again moistened his lips and, with a nervous motion, adjusted the plain starched ruff at his throat.

"One evening somewhat later i' the month at the time of the setting of the sun I was walking through the forest on my way to my home from the village when I encountered this woman most boldly dressed in a gay colored frock cut in an unseemly fashion to expose her arms an' neck, made thus, I wot, to lure men to their destruction, and, pausing before her, with only thoughts for her good in my heart, I attempted to expostulate with her, when of a sudden methought sparks of fire flashed from her eyes! The name of 'Godfrey' came in a shrill shriek from her lips, an', throwing her arms about me in a fury, she held me as in a vise with the unnatural strength of ten men. For my very life I struggled with her, strange noises sounding about mine ears, confusing me; then there was a loud report as of a burst of thunder, an' I was surrounded by a cloud of smoke that cleared away to show standing before me the form of the woman's accomplice, Sir Godfrey La Fabienne!"

CHICAGO, September 17.—I have turned my face homeward. The great council of the Independent Order of Red Men is over for 1908. It will be convened again in 1909, at Dallas, Texas. The California delegation stood seven for Bridgeport, Connecticut, and one for Dallas, Texas, and Bridgeport, Detroit and Dallas in the race. There were seven contrary men in my delegation who tried to enforce the unit rule. I do not believe in the unit rule except where "might is right" and in fraternal organizations this can scarcely be justified.

I rode on the "band wagon" with the driver. I have left the "sunny south," and before I started I looked at the weather forecast—It was, for Nashville rainy weather; Memphis, rainy; Bowling Green, Kentucky, showers; for Louisville, rainy; Indiana, rains; Chicago, wind southerly with prospect of rain—This is the first time that I ever knew the rain maker to be correct all the way down the line.

The south has surely a hold on the southern people that is surely not equalled by any other section of the country for the people who hail from there.

I shall not sing, however, "Carry me back to Tennessee," until it quits raining hot water.

A gentleman from Louisville was boasting Kentucky and he gave forcible expression to the virtues of that state—"Here's to Kentucky, where the "lie" is the first blow; where the race horses are so swift that the winds are jealous; where the whisky is so fine that intemperance is a virtue." This was all I remembered—It was enough. The gentleman that invited the great council to Tennessee said that the whiskey in Tennessee would make you drunk if you were sober, and would make you sober if you were drunk—I tried it both ways and I don't remember now which half of his statement is correct—I am sure one of them is wrong!

Chicago is a great city and destined to become very much greater. It has now more than 2,000,000 of inhabitants and no limit to the area of level country it can yet add to its builded portion. The "Hotel Warner," where I am stopping, is on 33d street, and but a few rods from the Lake shore. I walked to the stone bulkhead and looked out over the lake. It has all the marks of the ocean except the roaring waves on the beach. I counted twenty-seven water craft at a distance, some of them steamers. The city looks clean and is clean, and is well lighted. A frame or wooden house is a rarity. The question of municipal ownership is paramount to everything else here. The scheme of Mayor Dunne is, now, to have one corporation, organized in behalf of the city, take charge of all the street railroads and operate them for the city. Meetings are to be held at numerous points and a campaign started on this issue. The city owns its own water works and there is no doubt it will soon own all the street railroads. The "Major" is yet down where "The corn is full of kernels, and the colonels full of corn." J. C. RUDDOCK.

News From Potter.

POTTER, October 2.—Miss Hazel Barnett is attending high school in Ukiah.

Samuel Neill, wife and daughter, Lena, are visiting their daughter in Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. McDonough of San Francisco is visiting at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Chas. Neil and wife.

Harry Lierley, son of J. Lierley and wife, is suffering at present from a broken leg. Dr. Stout was recently from Ukiah to set the broken member.

Another accident also recently occurred here while driving from home to Centerville, the horses suddenly took fright and overturned a rig with Robert Richardson and L. D. Vann, causing thereby considerable bruises but no broken limbs.

Rev. Neat of the M. E. church, south, recently left for conference.

On Friday evening last the dancing element of our community had a social dance. Music was furnished by the Potter valley orchestra.

Rev. L. M. Ewing held his regulgr services here yesterday in the mission and also services here Monday evening in the M. E. church.

Rev. Lee and wife, pastor in charge here at the M. E. church has been appointed to a new ministerial field to labor in. His people and friends were sorry to lose them from their church and community. We have been experiencing some very warm weather here the last few days. Last year we seemingly had two spring seasons. This month is somewhat like two summers so far.

School has commenced again in the valley since hop picking.

Work is still progressing in the Eel river district. One would think something was being done in that vicinity by the amount of freight hauled over the road and the condition of the roads themselves. One would not complain of being occasionally sidetracked if the results there from help the community.

The god of love has again been in our midst and two of our young people have knelt at his shrine and pledged their vows for life. Miss Lulu Gavin, daughter of J. Gavin and wife of this place and John Pickle, Jr., were married Thursday last in Santa Rosa and will reside this winter in Bakersfield. May peace and prosperity attend them. VERA.

The Laytonville Bard

"And some shall be saved by the skin of their teeth."

When will Bill Hall come to get that cow?
Will it be when the summer time is past,
When the pale rose withers upon its stem,
And its petals are scattered by the autumnal blast?
Is it then? No not then.

Will it be when winter comes again?
When the cloud rack cleaves the sky
And the giant trees shall wail and bend,
While the racing winds shriek by?
Is it then? No not then.

Will it be when burdened with many years
When our speech is in childish treble spoken?
Will it be ere the golden cord be loosed
Or the pitcher at the fountain broken?
Is it then? No not then.

Centuries on centuries shall roll along
Lost in oblivion—ere that time shall be
Earth cannot know it—no voice or whisper low
Shall tell of that hour of destiny?
When is it then? O, when?

Lo! Our good, glad earth shall have grown old and grey,
The trumpet sound, the sun and moon turn red,
The star shall appear in the eastern sky
The waves depart, the sea give up its dead.

And when we all, trembling lest we shall not see
The New Jerusalem, with the golden street,
When the "Outer Darkness" hovers near
And we await sentence from the Judgment seat.

Then shall Bill Hall, all robed in white,
Glide sweetly forward, with an angelic bow
And say, Mr. Smith with your permission,
I've come to get my cow."

Then shall the Great Judge smile and say:
"You Long valley people were ever a miserable set."
The angel shall flash his flaming sword,
While the vaulted roof shall echo with these words:
"Enter at once into the joy of the Lord."

GARSEY & AMES RANCH SOLD

This week Messrs. Poage & Woodward, the real estate dealers of this city, closed up an important sale. They purchased the Garsey and Ames sheep ranch consisting of some 4100 acres on south Eel river and at once sold same to W. P. Thomas of this city for William G. Henshaw, the banker of Oakland who has heretofore purchased the Eden valley and Berry ranches adjoining the one just purchased. Mr. Henshaw now owns some 23000 acres between the south and middle forks of Eel river.

This sale again demonstrates the value of a live real estate firm to the county. Poage and Woodward have been industriously advertising the the county for the past three years and their efforts are beginning to bear fruit. Within the last year they have sold the Klauber ranch of 3400 acres to the Western Live Stock Co., the Brown ranch west of Willits to Hume and Spencer and the Stipp ranch of 2000 acres to Adams Bros. besides a large number of smaller ranches, farms and town property. Nearly all the property sold has been to outside people and new capitol has been brought into the county.

Our county offers many opportunities for the investment of capital in places where there is a sure return of a certain income and we need outside money to develop the county. The people who have come here and purchased property have not only invested their money here but they are bringing others with capital and new ideas, both of which we need.

Birthday Party.

Miss Neta Snell celebrated her 11th birthday at her home last Saturday afternoon by giving a birthday party. She had 28 of her friends and school mates present. The afternoon was spent in playing games, etc. At four oclock a birthday dinner was served and the little ones enjoyed the birthday cake which was lighted with toy candles. After lunch the party broke up and the children went home tired from the afternoon's play. X.

U H. S. NOTES

Things are somewhat quieter at the U. H. S. since the inter-class field day, but still the track is lined with boys who are earnestly training for the A. A. L., which takes place October 21st, at the Berkeley track.

Last Friday night the high school gave a party at York & Cleland's hall. The amusement consisted of dancing and games. Everyone had a fine time and the party was a success. Victor Henley was at the head of things and he sure filled the position.

The basket ball girls are out in training, rather they are practicing the game of ball. They have a first-class captain, Madge Brown, she was captain of the Mendocino high before coming here. She is very clever and we expect her to develop some star players before the season is over.

The school is one excited body at present, for this morning it was announced that there were prospects of having a swimming tank for the high school and it is a capital idea as it is very beneficial to both the student and the athelete. The boys have agreed to help do the building, and now all that is wanted is consent and money.

We have a new member of the school, Miss Nina Kane, '08.

Last week three members of the Mendocino high scheol were in town and they visited the U. H. S. We hope they were well pleased with our school. The young ladies were surely pleased with Ukiah's atheletes, and they thought of taking some of our seniors back with them.

The boys are now registering for the A. A. L., both for the track and base ball.

The shows, students and the professors agree well this week, though the lessons are not up to their usual standing the teachers have no chance to complain at the present mark.

We are expecting a more lively time next week, so we expect a more newsy column. MICKY.

Brave Work of Captain Louis Sorcho.

The following clipping, which is from the Baltimore Sun, refers to the famous marine engineer, Captain Louis Sorcho, who, with his clever deep sea diving exhibition, is one of the carnival shows which is billed here for next week.

"When on the morning of February 15, 1898, the entire civilized world was startled by the news that the Spanish had blown up our gallant battleship, Maine, in Havana harbor Captain Sorcho was in Baltimore, conducting his exhibition. He was doing an enormous business and was under heavy bonds and iron clad contract to play a season of two months, but when he heard of the great disaster and knew his country needed his aid he threw up the contract, paid the bond, closed up the show and within four hours after the news had been broken presented himself to the United States authorities at Washington. He was at once accepted as the most expert submarine engineer in the country.

Day and night he worked in that dangerous and twisted and torn mass recovering the dead, and when the last body that could be got out had been sent up he turned his attention to the investigation and it was his testimony that gave the court of inquiry its first proof that the ship had been blown up by external explosives and that her magazines had not exploded, as the Spanish claimed. It was the captain to whom the credit was due and it was to him that the credit was given. The greatest naval and army heroes of the country shook his hand and thanked him for his gallant services. By acclamation of the people he is America's premier diver."

EMMONS TELLS HIS SIDE OF CASE

FORMER SENATOR RELATES A STORY ON THE STAND TO WEAKEN TESTIMONY.

He Cannot Remember Some Things and When Being Closely Pressed Pleads for a Recess.

Sacramento, Oct. 4.—Somewhat more composed than he was Monday, ex-Senator E. J. Emmons resumed the witness stand in his own defense yesterday morning. After the ordeal of his first siege of cross-examination he was in a state of collapse. All night he was under the care of a physician, and there is grave doubt whether he will bear up under the strain until the case goes to the jury. The defendant excuses his evasive, faltering testimony under cross-examination on the ground that his illness has seriously clouded his memory. He doesn't remember the details except wherein he has prepared them to contradict Bunkers, Jordan, Lee, Hartling and Tichenor. One or two incidents, he asserts, were so indelibly impressed on his mind that they can never be forgotton.

Emmons admitted that on the night after the memorable bribery expose, Joseph S. Jordan called on him at the State House Hotel. He gave this interesting account of the evening: "Jordan came to me in my room and I don't think there was anyone else there besides him and me. 'Emmons,' he said, 'I have been discharged as correspondent of the Post, and have also been deposed as secretary of the San Francisco delegation. I have a family and somebody has got to take care of me.'

"I asked him how much money he wanted, and he said $2,500. Later, however, he came down to $2,000 and said if we wouldn't pay the money The Bulletin was ready to do so for his story. I said, 'Joe, you know I don't get any of that money.' 'That don't make any difference,' he replied. I'm in a position to say that you did or that you didn't, so it's up to you.' My anger got the better of me and I said, 'Joe leave this room. If you don't and if God lets me live I'll kill you.' Jordan left and I didn't see him again until he testified in this trial."

The defendant testified that the only business transaction at the first meeting of the Senate Committee on Commissions and Retrenchments was that of organization. Yesterday morning he was led into a glaring contradiction of that statement when he described in detail the initial conference of the four blackmailing Senators. He had each of the boodlers sitting in the committee room pouring over the codes and statutes and searching for some remedy for the defects in building and loan laws. He stretched that first meeting out into a lengthy session and an exhaustive discussion of suggested changes. Just when Emmons had worked himself into this tangle Johnson went to his rescue. "Your Honor," the attorney interrupted, "Dr Wilder has cautioned me in writing not to allow Mr. Emmons to remain too long under examination, if the witness needs a rest I ask that he be excused for a few minutes."

"My fever is rising," added Emmons, whereupon Judge Hart ordered a brief recess.

After the recess District Attorney Seymour again took up his cross-examination of the defendant, and kept him under a severe fire until noon. He brought out numerous contradictions between the answers given under direct examination and the statements made under cross-examination. At 12 o'clock Judge Hart announced a recess, until 1:30 o'clock, but on the request of the defendant changed the hour for convening in the afternoon until 2 o'clock.

DEXTER STABS HIS FRIEND.

Ballplayers Get Into Row and One Is Seriously Slashed With Knife.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 4.—While intoxicated and in a fit of demoniac temper, Charles Dexter, a star catcher of the Des Moines Western League ball team last night, stabbed First Baseman H. Q. Bateman of the Milwaukee American Association team. Bateman's condition is very serious, and he is hardly expected to live. Dexter, Bateman and several other players of the Des Moines and Milwaukee teams were making the rounds of the city in a hack in what they called a "fairwell" tour. They drank heavily, and when the trip ended Dexter and Bateman quarreled over paying for the hack. Bateman called Dexter a vile name, whereupon Dexter drew a long knife and slashed Bateman across the chest, the blade cutting into the lung. Dexter continued to threaten others of his associates when he was arrested.

EDDIE CUDAHY HAD HIMSELF STOLEN

THIS IS THE ASSERTION OF PAT CROWE, THE OMAHA ABDUCTOR, NOW A PRISONER

Declares Proposal of Abduction Was Made to Him by Scion of Millionaire Family, Who Got $6,000.

Kidnaper "Pat" Crowe Arrested.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 4.—"Pat" Crowe, who kidnaped, in 1900, young Edward Cudahy, the son of Omaha's millionaire packer, was captured Monday by Captain of Police McGrath and Detective McInerney. He was taken unaware as he was leaving a saloon on South Main street, but attempted to snatch one of the guns the officers held on him. Unsuccessful in this, he submitted. The prisoner admitted his identity.

Yesterday the famous outlaw, Pat Crowe, gave, in a signed statement, his version of the kidnaping of young Cudahy, five years ago, when the millionaire packer's son was fifteen years old. Crowe declares:

"In the month of September, I think the 6th, five years ago, Eddie Cudahy met me at the corner of Twentieth and Farnum streets, Omaha, and told he had a scheme by which each of us could make money from his old man. He said: 'Pat, you can make $25,000 without turning a hair.' He was then a lad of 16 years and I took the statement as mere ramblings of a kid. Well, he finally went into the plan so carefully and with the evidence of preparation that I decided to see the thing through, or at least eo see how far the boy would go with it.

"We met several times later and agreed that Eddie was to disappear, and I was to write the old man asking for $50,000 for a ransom. This we decided to cut down to $25,000. I took a partner in on the deal. Later I quit him and took another partner instead. Young Cudahy got $6,000 of the $25,000 the older Cudahy left for ransom the night Eddie Cudahy was released. I took $25,000 from where it was deposited to the house where Eddie Cudahy and my partner were waiting for me. We gave Eddie Cudahy $6,000, and then my partner and I split the rest. After that we took young Cudahy to within a block of the Cudahy home. I guess young Cudahy had that $6,000 with him then. I do not know what he did with it. I hid mine, but all of mine is gone now.

"At the time of the kidnaping the Chief of Police of Omaha was accused of being in it. He was perfectly innocent, knew nothing about it and is an honest man."

Omaha, Oct. 4.—Steps were taken yesterday to bring Pat Crowe to Omaha immediately, and the Chief of Police of Butte, has been asked to hold him until Nebraska officers can reach there.

Condemns Pagan Ideals.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4.—Dr. Arthur Hadley, President of Yale University, in his address at the first Sunday divine service of the academic year, warned students against ideals that lead to "fraudulent ideals, bad politics and un-Christian civilization." He said in part:

If a man's purpose and ideals are such that he is seeking to attain them for himself at the expense of his fellow men they are Pagan ideals.

If his ideals are such that each step toward their realization means the advancement of those about him, his purposes are Christian. Let us look at the application in various fields. What is the Pagan ideal of sport? To win, whether you play fair or not. What is the Christian ideal? To play the game fairly for all that it is worth and win if you can.

"If we hold the former ideal every game that we play is a training for fraudulent business, bad politics and un-Christian civilization.

"The man who fails, if he can but keep from the discourgement of failure, learns more lessons from them than the man who succeeds; the man who fails and rises above his failure is free from what is perhaps the most dangerous temptation of American business life at the present day—the danger of measuring the value of a man's purpose by the immediate and tangible results achieved."

Nevada Bars the New York Life.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 4.—Sam P. Davis, Controller of the State of Nevada, and who is at the head of the State Insurance Commission, revoked yesterday the license of the New York Life Insurance Company of Nevada. Notices have been sent to President McCall of the company and to the State agents of the company, stating that until further notice they must refuse to write policies in this State. Nevada is the first State to take such stern action with the big insurance company.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signatnre of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

During the recent session of the Congress of Zemstvo and Municipalities in Moscow Saturday, a new political party was formed, entitled the Constitutionalist Nationalist party.

Frederick A. Harliman, a lawyer, banker and one of the wealthiest men in Northern Iowa, was killed in an automobile accident Saturday in Des Moines, Ia. He was descending a steep hill and lost control of his machine.

THE GREAT NORTHERN HOLDUP.

Five Thousand Dollars Reward Is Offered for the Capture of Bandits.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 4.—Five thousand dollars reward is offered by the Great Northern Express Company for the capture and identification of the bandits who held up and dynamited the east-bound flyer north of Ballard Monday night. Four men are believed to have been implicated, at least two working around the train outside while the other two blew open the safe in the express car.

The story told by the two boys now in the Everett jail, that they were merely stealing a ride and had nothing to do with the robbery, is now generally believed.

Yesterday the sheriff and deputies found an abandoned horse and wagon about a mile and a half north of the scene of the hold up. The horse was badly spent and showed evidences of having been hardly used. The officers believe this is the outfit reported Monday morning as having been stolen from the barn of G. W. Calhoun near Kent. Kent is fully twenty miles from the scene of the robbery. Division Superintendent Scott gives out a statement this morning that so far as known $346 in cash was taken from the safe. No statement has yet been made regarding express matter.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

SAYS YOUNG MAN WHO STOLE $359,000 SECURITIES WAS TOOL OF CRIMINALS.

New York, Oct. 4.—Miss Katherine Leonard, sister of Harry A. Leonard, the young man who confessed to the theft of more than $359,000 worth of securities from the National City Bank, declared that young Leonard was the victim of another man, and that he was trying to protect the man and a woman. Miss Leonard declared that she had given the woman's name to the police and that she believed the unrestored portion of the securities was placed in a safe deposit vault by the woman. Miss Leonard said:

"There was a woman interested in my brother and he was interested in her. I want to say that my brother was simply the victim of a Wall street man, who, knowing his innocence, imposed upon him. My brother is now trying to protect this man but I, my father and mother and other friends, will not have it so

"In protecting the man he also is protecting a woman. When the police came here they found the facts just as I have given them to you and they also found $100,000 worth of the stocks in a safe deposit vault where they had been placed by this woman, I believe.

"I don't know the name of the man who has used Harry as his tool; but I do know the name of the woman."

Miss Leonard denied the police story that part of the securities were found in the Leonard home.

Lawyer Abraham Levy has been retained to defend Leonard. After a long talk with the prisoner Mr. Levy said he was satisfied that there was no criminal intent on young Leonard's part and that the whole affair was a foolish boyish escapade.

"When the young man is arraigned," said Mr. Levy, "I will make the contention that there was no criminal intent and think I will be able to convince the court of that fact."

To Pay or Go Out of Business.

Sacramento, Oct. 4.—C. F. Curry has presented his report to Governor Pardee to the effect that over 30,000 of the corporations doing business in the State have refused or neglected to pay their license tax of $10 and the penalty of $5, and the Governor is preparing a proclamation to the effect that unless the tax is paid within sixty days of the issuance of his proclamation those corporations will forfeit their charters and be compelled to go out of business.

State Grange of Husbandry Meets.

Napa, Oct. 4.—The annual meeting of the State Grange of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, began in Napa yesterday morning for a four-days' session. There is a large attendance of the delegations from the fifty granges all over the State, and about three hundred people are visiting Napa with the delegates. The sessions were held in the Napa Opera House, which had been decorated for the occasion by a committee of Napa Grange No. 307.
